Shane

We approach this serial with the same reservations we would have if a series was announced starring the Beatles in "The Bible." For, to us, Shane in the movie version was the Good Book of all Westerns. It was the late Alan Ladd's greatest performance, Van Heflin was almost equally good and Jack Palance was the most sinister bad man since we last lost our temper.

Reservations or no reservations, however, from the moment we saw the opening shot and heard that wonderful Shane theme song, we were a gone critter—I mean critic. In fact, we became so uncritical that when, in the third episode, Joey (Christopher Shea) pointed to some wild geese and said, "Why do the geeth go thouth, Thane?" we even thought he was thuperb. I tell you, the way it all gets to you is thomething.

Anyway, as you probably know by now, Shane (David Carradine) is the lone gunman with a past. His present in the movie version was a temporary stay with a farming family whose wife had a perfectly good husband. Shane's present in the TV version is considerably altered by the fact that the wife (Jill Ireland) is now a widow. Her loss is our gain because, while we still have the temporary angle of the movie version in the fact that we feel at any time Shane may take off for good, or even for bad, we also have a hope for a future—between Shane and the widow. In the first episode, for example, she has to remind Shane of his place—that he is just the hired man—but by the third episode he is untying her hair ribbon; so stick around. It's not Peyton Place, but it's got possibilities.

Carradine is no Alan Ladd. He belongs to the modern, psychological school of acting, and you're going to be more interested in his "why" than in his "what." Once you're over an initial negative about him, though, our guess is you're going to be more and more positive about him. As for Jill Ireland, her widow, Starett is written a little too far over on the Calamity Jane side for our taste—but she cries hard. Ryker, the villain (Bert Freed), is perhaps the chief improvement TV has made over the movie. He is one of the least all-bad bad men you've seen; and difficult as this role is to pull off, he does it excellently. In the TV version also there's a third male, Father Starett (Tom Tully), on the premises. He's not a priest, but her father-in-law—and in a town where there's no law west of the Pecos, it sure is good to have him. As for Joey, he gets tucked into bed an awful lot, but don't worry—he never theems to go to thleep. And we don't think you will either.

TV TELETYPE*: HOLLYWOOD: JOSEPH FINNIGAN REPORTS:

RICHARD RODGERS will write the score for NBC's musical version of GEORGE BERNARD SHAW's "Androcles and the Lion," a 90-minute special for 1967-68 . . . ABC is talking with GENE BARRY (Burke's Law) about doing another series, one with a comedy-and-singing format.

PAT BOONE has been hired by NBC as host of a daily musical-variety series beginning Oct. 17 . . . Another Oct. 17 NBC daytime entry is The Hollywood Squares, a game show with host PETER MARSHALL and regulars WALLY COX, CHARLEY WEAVER, MOREY AMSTERDAM, ROSE MARIE and ABBY DALTON.

There are more spoof series in the works. Producer JOE CONNELLY (The Munsters) is working on Walter of the Jungle, a Tarzan take-off. And Universal Studios is introducing Mr. Terrific, a weakling who takes pills, becomes a superman. Both are for CBS . . . BILL DOZIER (Batman) has another entry. His Mr. Zero features a man from another planet who hopes to wipe out all the evil on earth. Good luck.

ABC News will make a trip to Russia to record the life of "Ivan Ivanovich" and his typical Russian family. It airs Feb. 8 . . . The new CBS Golf Classic, a series of Saturday afternoon matches in a $166,000 tournament, begins Jan. 14 and runs until April 23 . . . ALLEN LUDDEN and his Password have extended their Hollywood stay. The show will originate from here until Dec. 2, an increase of eight weeks.

Hollywood's TV stars are heading East for Broadway shows: RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN (Dr. Kildare) is set to co-star with MARY TYLER MOORE (The Dick Van Dyke Show) in the musical "Breakfast at Tiffany's"; CONNIE STEVENS journeys for "The Star-Spangled Girl," NEIL SIMON's new play; and MIKE KELLIN, chief petty officer on The Wackiest Ship in the Army, joins the Broadway production of SIMON's "The Odd Couple" with EDDIE BRACKEN . . . JACK BENNY's long-time announcer DON WILSON is in a Batman, portraying a TV newscaster. The character's name? Walter Klondike.

■ They're busy in Hollywood trying to rewrite the movie code so that it makes sense in view of contemporary standards. It isn't easy.

For one thing there's television to consider. Most movies wind up on home screens, and while you can forbid youngsters to enter a theater, you can't keep all of them from seeing an "adult" movie on TV. Obviously the motion picture industry cannot be controlled by what the television audience wants its children to see, but the money from television is a serious consideration in movie economics.

■ Then there are American movie audiences to consider. Their standards differ greatly—by age group, by geographical location, by background—but despite a noticeable relaxation of moral restrictions, puritan standards still control the thinking, if not the actions, of most Americans.

Finally there is the growing competition from European moviemakers to consider. European films are as casual about sex as ours are about violence. Nudity and bedroom scenes are commonplace in films made abroad. American movies made to code standards seem rather tame by comparison when they're shown abroad. Europeans aren't exactly titillated by a sheepish Rock Hudson trying, unsuccessfully, to hold hands in a crowded restaurant with a well-corseted Doris Day.

■ The movie code writers would do well to ignore television completely and turn out a general statement of standards that will apply to films in theaters only. Most movies will be adaptable to television. Those that aren't can hope for added income overseas. The important thing is that such a code, run by administrators empowered to interpret its provisions, will make it possible for creative men to treat any subject tastefully.

IS TELEVISION GIVING US THE PICTURE?

TV Guide goes to the battlefield to report on how television is covering its first war—and how well

First of Four Parts BY NEIL HICKEY, New York Bureau Chief

Neil Hickey

At first light, the three helicopters climbed from the camp at Dak To in South Vietnam's jungled highlands and curved north, flying low under a gray ceiling of monsoonal cloud. Far overhead and out of sight were B-52 bombers, their bays yawning upon a regiment of surrounded North Vietnamese soldiers dug in along a ridge line.

In the helicopters were American television correspondents and their two-man crews: CBS's Bill Stout, NBC's Howard Tuckner and ABC's David Snell. The choppers swung lazily along beside the ridge and soon the great fireballs blinked through the morning haze as sheets of 750-pound bombs crashed into the high ground.

In one of the open-sided helicopters a 35-year-old Vietnamese cameraman named Vo Huynh swung his NBC camera outward toward the explosions; the wind flattened his black hair and he squinted hard to find the bursts flashing where the ridge line broke the clouds.

The other choppers lolled nearby, and Vo Huynh could see the snouts of two cameras pointed at the churning devastation which was opening raw sores in the jungle tree line. Now the last bombs were falling, and U.S. troops of the 101st Airborne Division were poised on the ground to rush inside the bombed sector and engage the North Vietnamese at close range.

The three helicopters slid downward sharply and landed where the attacking battalions were mustered; the TV crews leaped out and hurried into other choppers which were ferrying troops by sixes inside the North Vietnamese perimeter. It was time now for a re-enactment of the central experience of a TV crew's life in Vietnam: the helicopter assault landing in hostile terrain.

Ron Headford, ABC's 30-year-old Australian cameraman, cradled his camera between his knees during the helicopter's brief, parabolic leap, and then he was jumping outward with it, and Snell and the soundman were behind him. They ran in a low crouch away from the chopper's violent downdraft, across a clearing, and threw themselves into a ditch at the edge of a bamboo thicket.

Machine-gun fire rattled somewhere, and they heard the snap of North Vietnamese rifles. Hurriedly, Headford shouldered his camera, stood straight up and began filming other helicopters wheeling in, disgorging troops and then mounting past the tree tops.

Soon all the attackers were on the ground, and the march upward began, over a narrow jungle trail and under whispering artillery fire which smashed into the hillside ahead. Thick monsoon showers fell, leaving the trail muddy and awash.

In the ensuing several hours, ABC's trio—bearing 25-pound camera, sound gear, film cans, tape recorder, canteens, ponchos, jungle blankets and C-rations—climbed to—ward the high ground, waded through streams and muddy, waist-deep sink-holes, huddled against the rains, and filmed the troop column's tortuous advance. Nearby, the two other network crews were engaged in similar business.

It was a day like hundreds of others in Vietnam; a few North Vietnamese were killed, and a few Americans wounded. At the end of it the three correspondents hurried to ship their film off to Saigon, where it would be transferred quickly to cargo planes heading for the United States. Twenty-four hours later those battle films would be visible on the Huntley-Brinkley and Walter Cronkite and Peter Jennings network news programs.

TV GUIDE had come to Vietnam to live such days, to observe television crews at work in the field; to listen to the problems of the bureau chiefs in Saigon; and to assess the adequacy and honesty of television's handling of this strange and complex war. Two factors had prompted the undertaking: 1) Vietnam is television's first war, and 2) almost 60 percent of Americans now get most of their news about the conflict from television's network news.

Here are some of the men covering Vietnam for TV:

Roger Peterson, 29, ABC: "A major frustration is that there are so many stories to be done in Vietnam and so little television time available for them. Many of a correspondent's best pieces just never get on, but we go ahead and do them anyway for our own satisfaction."

John Flynn, 33, CBS: "Vietnam is where the big story is. This is where it's happening, and I see no reason to be anywhere else."

Howard Tuckner, 35, NBC: "Correspondents are always saying to field commanders, 'Just tell me where the heaviest fighting is going to be. That's all I ask.' Then we go there and try to film it. I'm grateful for the chance to cover this war. If I were married, my wife would have to understand what this story means to me."

Lou Cioffi, 40, ABC: "You begin wondering when the law of averages will catch up with you. I'm scared all the time, but I'm more scared now than when I first came out here. TV has nothing in its history to prepare it for this kind of story."

David Burrington, 35, NBC: "There are so many imponderables and ironies here that it's sometimes difficult, if not downright impossible, to explain what's happening in terms that an American audience will understand."

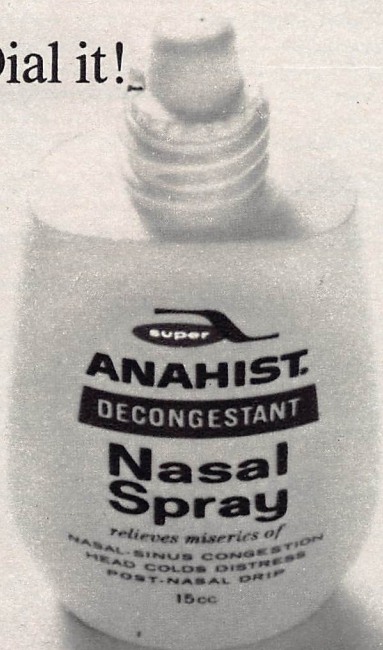

Peter Kalischer, 51, CBS: "Once you commit yourself to a company during a military action, you're with them. You can't jump in a jeep and look someplace else for a battle; there are no jeeps in the jungle. You're hoping to get shot at; otherwise you don't have a story."

Ray Moloney, 38, ABC: "The soldiers in the field are enormously pleased to have TV crews around. To them, it means somebody continued really cares about what they're doing. They'll share their last C-ration with you, and tie down your poncho tent properly so it doesn't blow away. I have never felt more appreciated, nor more humble."

These men and their colleagues—technicians and bureau chiefs—are volunteers; none are sent to Vietnam. They've asked for the assignment or heeded a call. The correspondents are indeed a special breed, a new kind of newsmen, aglomeration of special traits: ambition, competitiveness, muscle power, adventurousness, perseverance, ingenuity and pridefulness—tinged in some cases with harmless vanity, for TV newsmen are, after all, part performer.

Some are hellbent for personal glory and the big payoff that awaits those whose reputations flourish in these jungles.

"Let's be truthful," one of the younger ones said. "We're all war profiteers. We know that if we prove ourselves here we can short-cut our careers by five to 10 years. Here in Vietnam you can get your face on the network news three or four times a week. That's more than you can do in the United States. It's risky, but it's money in the bank. A lot of us realized that reputations were being made out here, and that we'd better get in on it. For TV newsmen of a certain age group, you've got to have Vietnam on your record if you want to succeed. It's like being knighted into full correspondent status."

The reasons for their coming are as varied as the correspondents themselves, but they all share the same dangers, which are considerable. Remarkably, no TV crew member has yet been killed in Vietnam, although a number have been wounded seriously. One of the most astonishing episodes of the coverage occurred at Qui Nhon, on the coastal lowlands, last March.

John Laurence, a 26-year-old CBS newsmen, was marching with an American unit when a South Vietnamese armored column—mistaking the Americans for North Vietnamese—opened fire on them. Laurence's Danish cameraman, Carl Sorensen, hurriedly commenced filming the armored column's belching guns, the nearby explosions, and panning his camera to an American officer who was shouting into a field telephone: "For God's sake, stop it! We're Americans!"

In the next instant CBS's soundman—a 22-year-old Thai named Vallop Rodboon—was struck in the abdomen by shrapnel and fell to the ground. Laurence, microphone in hand, turned quickly to interview Rodboon where he lay; Sorensen's camera, still rolling, captured the scene. But, most remarkable of all, Rodboon, in his seriously wounded state, continued to operate the sound equipment for his own interview—one of the most poignant of the Vietnam war.

Young correspondents learn survival fast in the jungles and rice paddies. On an operation with the 1st Air Cavalry Division north of An Khe, NBC's David Burrington was standing near two soldiers when a burst of Vietcong machine-gun fire killed one of them and wounded another. His cameraman, Vo Huynh, said later: "I continued

Our brand-new tuning eye makes it easy to tune color like this. As easy as tuning a radio.

We've eliminated the guesswork in tuning the picture. Just turn the fine tuning dial until the little green eye is at its narrowest point, and you've got it. On UHF or VHF. Then it's only a matter of adjusting the color tint to your personal taste.

Another reason the color is as good as what you're seeing here (telecast by WKBS-TV, Channel 48, Philadelphia, photographed from a production model Philco set at 1/15th second on ASA 160 film) is that we've made the vital signal system completely solid state. That means there are no old-style vacuum tubes in those circuits to heat up or burn out. Just cool little space-age miracles that sit quietly pulling in the kind of great color you're seeing here.

We've done other good things, too. But all we're trying to do right here is get you interested. Interested enough to find out more from your Philco dealer. And see some color programs on a Philco for yourself. Then make up your own mind. We'll take our chances on that.

thought Burrington was dead. I saw the bullets kicking up dirt, then all three of them crumbled to the ground."

The newsman, however, was unhurt and hugging the ground behind a shrub. Vo Huynh shouted and waved for the correspondent to find sturdier cover, but Burrington only waved back reassuringly until he perceived his colleague's meaning, and leaped behind a rock. "Shrubs don't stop bullets," the veteran cameraman reminded Burrington later, and of such small lessons is survival in Vietnam made. TV crews soon learn not to stand near soldiers carrying maps or radio equipment because snipers often choose those men as targets.

During nine days last May, when the northern town of Danang was the scene of bitter fighting between Buddhist-led rebel troops and loyalist forces from Saigon, ABC's Roger Peterson—revolted and angered by the senseless bloodshed all around him—ad-libbed to his camera: "The only sane thing I've seen since arriving in this town is a dog chasing a cat." When a loyalist attack to crush the rebels was imminent, Buddhist leaders called a press conference at their pagoda headquarters—a corner of which was filled with 35 bodies dragged inside during the week—for a group of newsmen including Peterson, NBC's Ron Nessen, and CBS's Dan Rather and Bill Stout.

When all were gathered and waiting, it soon became apparent that no conference would be held and that the reporters were wanted as hostages against the loyalist attack which already was mustering outside in the darkening courtyard. A few newsmen walked from the pagoda hurriedly, and in a cross fire which erupted at that moment four of them were badly wounded.

Some of the TV men came out shouting "Bao Chi!" ("Press!") and shining television lights in their faces to establish that they were noncombatants. Through scattered fire, they made it safely down the broad steps of the pagoda, across the courtyard and past the loyalist troops. "It was the scariest evening of my life," said one of them later.

Two months later, on July 12—and only five weeks before his year-long tour in Vietnam was to end—Ron Nessen was wounded in the chest by grenade fragments while covering a reconnaissance patrol in the central highlands.

But far more typical of a TV crew's life in Vietnam is something the correspondents call the "walk in the sun" story. Three CBS newsmen described it: "We helicoptered to a peak 2300 feet over a Vietcong-controlled valley," said Peter Kalischer. "For the next seven hours we slid down the steep incline, hanging on to trees and struggling to protect our equipment. It was the most grueling physical exertion I've ever encountered on a story. At the bottom, we discovered the Vietcong had vanished. There was no contact, and we exposed not one usable foot of film."

Murray Fromson: "Near Chu Lai, I walked for six hours in 130-degree heat. Sixty Marines fell to heat prostration, but there was no significant contact with unfriendly forces. No story."

Dan Rather: "For four days we walked with the Marines near Danang without finding Vietcong. A major apologized for the lack of action, but said, 'Tomorrow the chances are quite good.' We were up at 3 A.M., moved out before dawn, walked 17 kilometers and reached a South Vietnamese army outpost which already had been wiped out. So all I got was one hundred feet of an aftermath story. No battle footage."

For TV men, as well as soldiers, this is the walking war, the jungle life of malaria, amoebic dysentery and hepatitis; of ambush, land mines and booby traps; of sleeping on the ground, washing from upturned helmets and drinking warm water from canteens; of scrounging helicopter rides to the roughest action; of shouting into field telephones that barely work, and—as one correspondent put it—"pushing the cause of journalistic profanity to new horizons."

There is indeed nothing in television's past to prepare it for this kind of endeavor, and so the rules are being written, day by day, one at a time. World War II was reported by precocious young correspondents of courage and durability—Edward R. Murrow, Howard K. Smith, Eric Sevareid, Charles Collingwood, William L. Shirer, Robert Trout, Winston Burdett, Richard C. Hottelet and many others. Vietnam is producing a new roster of candidates for a similar canonization.

It is certain, however, that the Vietnam war is exorbitantly more demanding, both mentally and physically, than anything those earlier newsmen faced in Europe or the Pacific. Television news—like many other American teen-agers—is growing up in the rice paddies and rain forests of Asia.

Can a View-Master® really help your youngster get better grades?

Quite likely.

Because educators (and parents, too) know that kids do their best in the things that interest them most. And interest is exactly what Sawyer's View-Master pictures create in a youngster. Magnificent full-color, 3-dimension pictures make the subjects he's studying in school suddenly become alive, interesting...and "just like real!"

Will he study Canada this year? With a View-Master Stereo Viewer he'll travel to Old World fishing villages in Quebec, see Ottawa's majestic Parliament building, and sail up the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Will he study the United States? View-Master has a separate packet on each one of the 50 states. And every packet comes with a fact-filled, illustrated folder.

All in all, there are more than 800 different subjects in View-Master's world of learning. A 3-reel packet of 21 full-color, stereo pictures is just $1.25. The stereo viewer and a sample reel are only $1.75. Available at photo, drug, variety and department stores. (If your favorite store doesn't carry View-Master, just write to us.)

View-Master. An inexpensive, helpful, stimulating and long-lasting back-to-school gift.

WORLD SERIES

At press time, the Dodgers, Pirates and Giants were in contention for the National League pennant. World Series games are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, with Friday reserved as a travel or rain date. NBC's telecasts (including pre-game commentary) are to begin at 9:30 A.M. if the Pirates win the pennant; 11:30 A.M. (Giants); or 12:30 P.M. (Dodgers). If the high-pressure race ended in a tie, NBC will cover the scheduled three-game play-off on Tuesday, Wednesday and (if necessary) Thursday. If the Giants are involved in a play-off or the Series, Ch. 2 will also carry the telecasts. Regularly scheduled programming will be pre-empted.

LETTERS

Correspondence for this department should be addressed to Letters Department, TV GUIDE, Radnor, Pa. All letters must be signed. Names withheld upon request.

VIEWER SERVICE

If you wish to write comments to those in charge of a specific show, you should send your letters to: (Name of Show), TV GUIDE Viewer Service, Box 800, Radnor, Pa. These letters will be forwarded to the proper executives.

PRO

Congratulations to ABC for "The Love Song of Barney Kempinski"! It was a highly imaginative and thoroughly enjoyable program. I am truly looking forward to a season of ABC Stage 67 presentations. Television does have potential and, if Stage 67 is an indication of a trend in TV programming, those of us who have lost almost all faith in the medium's weekly offerings can breathe a bit easier.

Judith E. Plitt
Glen Rock, Pa.

CON

Who is kidding whom? After reading your Sept. 3 "As We See It," I was expecting an hour of impressive drama on ABC Stage 67, but instead saw a combination of the Three Stooges, Keystone Cops and a very bad imitation of Naked City! The only good drama was the commercials.

Jerrie Brown
Tyler, Texas

ENLIGHTENMENT

Thank you for the run-down of the new shows in your Sept. 10 fall preview issue. I took one look at what was in store this year and went out and registered for evening adult classes. And they say TV isn't educational!

Bloomfield, Conn.

COUSIN RAT

After a quarter of a century our American cousins managed successfully, it seems, to swipe the legendary green beret of the British commandos. That pill we swallowed without too much fuss. However, since when did Americans qualify for the much honored title "desert rat," or where in history did they take part in the activities of the British long range desert groups? Leave the glory where it really belongs, with those who fought long and hard, the tommies, diggers, sepoy, kiwis and springboks. Either change the characters in Rat Patrol and make it closer to the truth or take it off altogether.

Scarborough, Ont.

MONKEES SI

I would like to say a word, as an adult, about NBC's new show, The Monkees. To me it is what television has needed for a long time. It is a fresh kind of comedy with a bright youthful approach that I think will be liked by almost everybody, except maybe, Cleveland Amory. It is the only ray of sunshine in the whole dark season.

(Name Withheld)
New Orleans

VINTAGE

Hurray for Richard Mulligan and good old-fashioned belly laughs in The Hero.

Santa Barbara, Cal.

FOR THE RECORD

Northern California Edition

Northern View: Canadian female TV producer Beryl Fox and correspondent Morley Safer will profile Saigon for a January CBS special.

Looking Ahead: Burton Benjamin, a TV producer, has quit this century for the next. Benjamin, long the man behind The Twentieth Century, announced that he will drop that show and begin a new series called The 21st Century. "I'm convinced that the future is invented, not determined," Mr. Benjamin stated. "It can be whatever we want it to be, but first we must understand the possibilities."

The show won't be in any way science fiction because all of the things considered are already now being worked on—in areas such as medicine, urban living (megalopolis), genetics, oceanography and space.

The show will start on Sunday, Jan. 22, in the old Twentieth Century slot. Walter Cronkite will narrate.

Global TV: When people in Europe watched the Sept. 15 Gemini II splashdown they were watching one of the first successful uses of a portable TV terminal—live equipment mounted on the USS Guam.

The use of such equipment will some day allow TV to be on the scene practically anywhere in the world and capture it live on portable equipment. The image could then be sent to a satellite from any given place or places in the world and then relayed from the satellite through existing ground connections to local stations.

Necrology: The Tammy Grimes Show may go off the air, possibly after the Sept. 29 show. A source close to the show has been reported as saying that it "isn't going anywhere." Its replacement may be a nighttime version of The Dating Game.

Night Friars: The Friars, the famous actors club, may be the basis of a CBS variety series, with each program acknowledging a show-business event. The series, tested as a special several years ago, would originate in a replica of the Waldorf-Astoria grand ballroom. Marlo Lewis, former executive producer of The Ed Sullivan Show, will probably produce.

Lifesaver: An ABC documentary on Oct. 24 will deal with the methods used by helicopter pilots, doctors and nurses in evacuating and treating the wounded in Vietnam.

Sky Plight: NBC, on Nov. 7, will air a documentary concerned with the problems of commercial aviation. Titled "The Overcrowded Sky," it will deal with the myriad difficulties of modern flight.

Memory and Desire: Newton N. Minow, the T. S. Eliot of tubedom, retracted in part his "vast wasteland" statement of a few years back. Commercials, he says, are getting better. But programland seems, in his mind, to be still pretty arid. "... some commercials ... remain better than some programs," said Mr. Minow, who also praised "significant improvements" in news and informational areas.

—Henry Harding

"Pat" Brown

Ronald Reagan

One of the most hotly contested political races this year is being run in California, where Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown is battling Republican gubernatorial candidate Ronald Reagan. The candidates are interviewed in Los Angeles.

Governor Brown, seeking his third term in the Statehouse, trailed Reagan in early campaign polls. In recent weeks, however, polls have shown the governor gaining strength.

Former actor Reagan came into the political spotlight as California co-chairman of Sen. Barry Goldwater's 1964 Presidential campaign. Reagan, who won a decisive victory in the California Republican gubernatorial primary, has the endorsement of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Among the topics likely to be discussed: racial discrimination in housing and how the November election will affect the 1968 Presidential election. Correspondents: Piers Anderton and Frank Reynolds.

'THE AGONY OF TWO CITIES'

SPECIAL COLOR In the summer of 1966, Chicago and Cleveland felt the brunt of racial discontent. This report examines the economic and political forces that make both cities unique—and explosive.

Chicago: Films trace the civil-rights attack on one of the city's biggest problems—housing discrimination. The tactics used to open "closed neighborhoods" are described by police officers, city officials and civil-rights spokesmen such as Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Also discussed: Negro dissension over the uses of violent and nonviolent protest, and the meaning of Black Power.

Cleveland: An argument in a bar sparked a police incident. The result: mushrooming crowds erupting into a violent mob. The toll: extensive property damage, injury and death. NBC correspondents examine the underlying cause of the riot.

Anchor man: Floyd Kalber. Producer: Eliot Frankel. (Portions taped from a live telecast; 60 min.)

10:00 5 10 12 SPORTS/FITNESS TEST

SPECIAL COLOR The accent is on sports as Harry Reasoner conducts this season's first CBS viewer test.

Each year, thousands of Americans under age 65 die of cardiovascular diseases which could have been prevented through proper exercise. Producer Bob Wussler has a simple solution: "Run from 10 to 20 minutes a day." To make viewers more aware of the need to keep in shape, Wussler has designed this test of knowledge and opinions on sports and physical fitness.

You will be asked questions as cameras focus on such places as the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., where cadets eat heartily without gaining an ounce; Arthur, a New York night spot where the Watusi dance trims fat into muscle; and La Sierra High School outside Sacramento, Cal., a school that boasts of one of the Nation's best physical-fitness programs.

Also shown: a segment on great moments in sports, including Bobby Thomson's pennant-winning home run in 1951, and Joe Louis's first-round KO of Max Schmeling in 1938. (60 min.)

SPECIAL COLOR The World Series opener is scheduled for the park of the National League winner. Starting times: 10 A.M. (if the Pirates win), 12 Noon (Giants) and 1 P.M. (Dodgers). Announcers include Curt Gowdy and Chuck Thompson. (Live)

The NL's theme is, again, "September Song": the games dwindle down to a precious few, with the pennant race undecided. The only certainty was that the winner would play against the American League's Orioles, who won their pennant Sept. 22. It was the first flag for Baltimore since the old Orioles won three straight beginning in 1894.

Last winter, the Orioles traded for outfielder Frank Robinson, who got off to a fine early start—and was last seen heading for the Triple Crown (home run, runs-batted-in and batting-average titles). Powerful John "Boog" Powell is the No. 2 batter. The infield is solid—Brooks Robinson is considered one of the game's best third basemen, and shortstop Luis Aparicio is a speedy veteran. Toward the end of the race, the starting pitchers began to feel the strain, but the bullpen crew—headed by Stu Miller, Eddie Fisher and Dick Hall—took up the slack to hold challengers at bay.

If the Dodgers won the NL flag, it will have been done on speed, fielding and brilliant pitching by Sandy Koufax, Phil Regan and the rest of the hard-pressed staff. (The Dodgers regard hitting as something of a lost art.)

The Pirates get good hitting (Matty Alou, Willie Stargell and Roberto Clemente are their best), but consistent pitching has been a problem all season.

The Giants, clinging to a slim chance of winning the flag, have been plagued all season by poor second-line pitching and a sorry defense. They can still give their opponents the willies—Mays and McCovey—and they get stand-out pitching from Juan Marichal and Gaylord Perry.

'The Kennedy Wit'

"Wit makes its own welcome, and levels all distinctions . . ."

President Kennedy's speeches were filled with ringing rhetoric—and also with wit and humor that was eloquent and subtle. He had the gift that comedians call "good timing," and could deliver repartee with rapierlike precision.

Films, stills and recordings recall famous and less well-known lines from JFK's campaign speeches and calamities; news conferences (such as his celebrated exchanges with newswoman May Craig); addresses to statesmen and Nobel Prize winners; informal moments with his wife and family; and occasional problems with foreign languages.

There's also an interview with David Powers, one of the late President's administrative assistants and a member of

KEITH and KIN

The star of 'Family Affair' is going to spend only 70 days a year raising his TV family

BY ARNOLD HANO

A few months ago Les Kaufman, publicist for Don Fedderson Productions, warmed up for the current season by touting the new Fedderson show, Family Affair (CBS, Mondays, 9:30 P.M., ET) to his friends and continued neighbors. Who—his f & n wanted to know—would star in Family Affair?

"Brian Keith and Sebastian Cabot," Kaufman said.

"Oh," they squealed. "Sebastian Cabot. We just love him."

Kaufman did not have to go to the lay public for so wild a display of indifference toward Brian Keith. The pilot film of Family Affair began with the usual title cards and credits. Leading off was the name "BRIAN KIETH." Somebody caught the misspelling, and Kieth was again Keith.

When you ask Don Fedderson, who created the show with Edmund Hartmann, what there is about Brian Keith that induced Fedderson to sign him, the producer says, "If you close your eyes, he is vaguely remindful of John Wayne." If you open your eyes, he is vaguely remindful of what's-his-name who played second-string fullback at your college back in 1940 or 1941. He isn't the same guy. Brian Keith never went to college; he had enough trouble with high school.

So that is, or isn't, Brian Keith, who is very apt to do something these next weeks that will appall or amuse him in later years: He may soon be a very well-known star. Family Affair has an awful lot going for it—three orphans, a doll with Benjamin Franklin eyeglasses, and a hyperthyroid laugh-track, plus other solid box-office ingredients. It is as original as sin, but nowhere near as interesting. Keith plays a bachelor-about-Manhattan, whose swinging life of frolic and females is radically curtailed when he is suddenly forced to raise two nieces and a nephew. Keith has a man Friday—that's Sebastian Cabot—who naturally loathes children, and who has all the funny lines. The show is thus an amalgam of Bachelor Father, My Three Sons, and the "Mr. Belvedere" movies. Call it "Bachelor Uncle" and you've got the idea.

Producer Fedderson (who also created My Three Sons) obviously knows what he is doing. "I have a rule of thumb," he says. "If they love you in the Middle West, you've got a hit on your hands." So the three orphans—6-year-old boy-girl twins and their teen-age sister—hail from Terre Haute, Ind., and it is hoped that as Indiana goes, so goes the Nielsen.

Which explains everything, except why Brian Keith took the job. For years now the 45-year-old Keith has been happily camouflaged in movies: a solid, competent actor always on call (most recently, "Nevada Smith" and "The Russians Are Coming The Russians Are Coming"), and a guy who salts away all the money he earns, which is considerable. Why, then, a television series, and, golly-winkles, why this vehicle?

"The only attraction is the time," Brian Keith said the other Noon at the Brown Derby. "I work just 70 days a year on the show. I can still make two, three movies a year, if I want to."

It's the MacMurray plan

Thus Brian Keith joins Fred MacMurray—the only living undergraduates of the Fedderson System. Most television series regulars work up to 39 weeks a year. Fedderson, who is a logistical genius if he is not TV's answer to Eugene O'Neill, or even Eugene Field, has devised a magical method of shooting in 13 weeks all the scenes in which his star appears, and then spending the remaining half year or so on the rest of the show. Fred MacMurray would not make My Three Sons until Fedderson proved Fred would work 13 weeks, and lay off 39, instead of the other way around. Now, Brian Keith.

Actually, Keith is no stranger to television series work. Back in 1960 he starred in an excellent Western series, titled, oddly enough, The Westerner, which won critical acclaim but was a financial flop. And a decade-plus ago Keith appeared in Crusader, a solemn espionage show which did everything straight that is considered Camp today. "All it reminds me of is sore feet," Keith says. "All that walking around."

There is, of course, less walking around in 13 weeks than in 39 weeks—less, indeed, of everything, except pay. Keith does not need the money, but he is not returning any, nor is he giving up his part-ownership in Family Affair. "If it were Bonanza, walking around the Ponderosa, tied up nearly all year, no-o-o chance. That's a fate worse than death."

If these appear crass reasons for working, so be it. "I am not disenchanted, or cynical, or bitter," says Keith. "I just know how things are."

Keith admits Family Affair presents little challenge, but he also says, "I like comedy. I like kids. I like this type of human show."

Which is perhaps the best way to describe Brian Keith. He likes kids; he likes the human show. He and his wife, the former actress-dancer Judy Landon, and their four children live on three lush acres overlooking the Bel-Air Country Club, tolerantly overrun by four dogs, four cats, and assorted friends such as hamsters, raccoons, parrots, squirrels and canaries.

The prize pet these days is a clown of a malamute pup who dives into the Keith pool and occasionally runs away. Recently he dug his way under the property fence and munched through the wilds of Beverly Hills, all the way to the chancellor's office at UCLA in Westwood, three miles distant, where fat coeds fed the dog peanut-butter sandwiches and candy bars before Keith embarrassedly claimed him.

The malamute is obviously more comfortable in the academic world than Keith ever was. He was born in Bayonne, N.J., on Nov. 14, 1921, the son of show-business continued parents who were divorced when he was 3. Deciding early he wanted to go to sea, he prepared for the Merchant Marine Academy, which meant lots of mathematics. "I faced algebra," says Keith, "and lost." He dawdled through high school, not knowing what he wanted to do, and held a series of jobs such as Fuller Brush salesman, aircraft riveter, golf caddy, waiter, and ticket-taker at Frank Buck's exhibit at the New York World's Fair in 1939. He finally got to sea, as a machine-gunner on a dive bomber in the Marines, and got out in 1945. His mother by this time owned a gift shop, across from New York's Columbia University, and on occasion suggested Keith use his GI Bill of Rights for college. "I'd rather go to jail," he said.

So he worked in a post office, in a restaurant, on the docks. He pushed a hand truck through the garment district. He reached a peak of uselessness in the tool room of a garage, where he was the guy to whom the mechanics said, "Hand me a No. 3 wrench."

"I was turning into a toad," he says. "One day I yelled, 'I am going to pot!' and when I heard myself, I quit."

A friend suggested Keith go up to Clinton, Conn., where they were hiring for a stock company. Keith, who had acted in school plays and had been thrown out of the high school drama club, shrugged his beefy shoulders and went. He was hired at $50 a week, and has been at it ever since, on stage, in radio, in films and on television. He met his wife in 1953 when she was making "Red Garters" and he was making "Jivaro," a film Keith would otherwise be delighted to forget. They were married a year later, and had two children, a boy and a girl. When the boy was a few years old he died, victim of one of those savage 24-hour pneumonia onslaughts. A friend of Keith's says, "It changed Brian. He used to be a swinger. He stopped drinking immediately. He stopped getting into brawls." The Keiths set out to adopt a child and characteristically ended up adopting three. Today their three girls and a boy are 4, 5, 6, and 7. One suspects that, for all the cynical growls, Keith is doing Family Affair precisely because the show deals with a man who adopts three children.

He doesn't watch TV

Keith refuses to permit show business to take over his life. Television occupies no part of his free time. "I never look at it," he says. But his displeasure with television does not keep him from working on the screen, nor trying to write for it. He recently finished an hour-long teleplay about Will Kemp, the 16th-century comic actor. The play deals with a backstage spat between Kemp and William Shakespeare on how to play the gravedigger's scene in "Hamlet." Keith obviously sides with Kemp, the actor, against Shakespeare, the writer. It is part of Keith's theory that acting consists of protecting yourself against the script, when you are not protecting yourself against the director. Directors are Keith's particular bêtes noires. He places directors in three categories: "The guy who is an S.O.B. and bugs you every inch of the way; the guy who doesn't know anything, so he leaves you alone; and the rare guy who has ideas, who is creative."

The Westerner, and its producer-director and creator, Sam Peckinpah, fitted into that rare third category, and the show failed—Keith says—because it was too good for the public.

Brian Keith has no fears Family Affair is going to be too good for the public, and working just 70 days a year he isn't going to be bugged very much. Under these circumstances—he says cheerfully—"I'd be willing to do this show for 10 years."

TURN PAGE FOR RECIPES

Here's a double-duty recipe using foods from faraway Alaska. Prepare half of the recipe for a hot hors d'oeuvre and the other half for crackers and a cold dip. Two versions should keep the guests happy without extra work for the cook.

CRAB OR SALMON TURNOVERS, CRACKERS AND DIP

Makes 20 turnovers, 48 crackers and about 3 cups dip

3 packages pie-crust mix	(For alternate recipe, use a
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese	1-lb. can red salmon, drained
1 can (4 oz.) pimiento, drained	and flaked, in place of the crab
and chopped	meat.)
1/3 cup chopped scallions or	2 tbsp. lemon juice
onions	1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped	Salt to taste
2 packages (6 oz. each) frozen	1 egg, beaten with 2 tbsp. water
King crab meat, chopped	2 cups (1 pt.) sour cream

Prepare pie crust according to package directions, adding Parmesan cheese to flour before adding liquid. Combine pimiento, scallions, chopped eggs, King crab, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Mix, add salt to taste.

For turnovers: Roll out  $\frac{3}{4}$  of the pie crust on a lightly floured surface into an oblong 16 x 20 inches. Cut dough into 20 4-inch squares. Brush squares lightly with water. Put a tablespoon of the crab mixture on each square. Fold dough over filling, shaping a triangle, and press edges together with the tines of a fork. Prick top to allow steam to escape. Place on ungreased cookie sheets and brush tops with beaten egg. Bake in preheated hot oven (400° F.) for 12 to 15 minutes, or until golden brown. Serve hot.

For crackers and dip: Add sour cream to filling remaining from turnovers. Stir well, pour into serving bowl and chill until ready to serve. Roll out remaining pie crust on a lightly floured surface to an oblong 12 x 16 inches. Cut dough with a cookie cutter into 48 2-inch rounds. Put rounds on ungreased cookie sheet. Prick top with a fork and brush with beaten egg. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400°F.) for 5 to 6 minutes, or until crackers are lightly browned.

Rides Every Thursday

A Great Debate over the femininity of rusty-orange and other vital questions which bedevil a series' crew

Second of Two Parts BY DICK HOBSON

"All the other husbands and wives have twin beds. We have the only double bed in television."

So speaking, the auburn-haired girl turns dreamily to ogle her new bed. She adores everything about her new bedroom. She is Mariette Hartley, the "Ruth Garret" who is wife of "Sam Garret," The Hero of the new fall series of that name.

(Mariette must have been ogling her cathode-ray tube rather dreamily if she missed Oliver and Lisa of Green Acres, Samantha and Darrin of Bewitched, and Joan and Jim of Please Don't Eat the Daisies, to say nothing of several Peyton Placers, scampering in and out of their respective double beds all last season.)

"And the wives have to wear pajamas," continues Mariette doggedly. "I'm the first situation-comedy wife to wear a nightgown."

It is morning of the first day of the last week of June as a Hero episode titled "Rumble Without a Cause" goes into production at Paramount-Sunset Studio in Hollywood, and the producers find themselves deeply embroiled in yet another irritating problem which seems always to intrude itself just as cast reading and rehearsals are about to begin.

The doors of Stage 3 stand open, the early light spilling across the three-wall bedroom set still under construction. Art director Howard

Campbell carries in three panels, painted varying shades of orange, and places them side by side at the head of the bed. He is here to meet the man who is to adjudicate the day's burning question: What color should Miss Hartley's bedroom walls be painted? That would be The Hero's creator and executive producer, Leonard Stern, a stately-looking man with black hair and graying goatee, now making his way across the soundstage to the focal bedchamber. He invites Miss Hartley to state her preference of the three shades and she chooses a rusty-orange. Doesn't she think the shade is too feminine for Richard? No. Stern requests that the Garret bedroom be so painted.

The "Richard" that rusty-orange is not considered too feminine for is actor Richard Mulligan, Hero star, who plays the part of actor Sam Garret who, in turn, stars in his own TV series, Jed Clayton—U.S. Marshal. Which is not as confusing as it sounds, being only two video tubes removed from reality. In Mulligan's tube is Garret and in Garret's tube is Clayton. It's that simple.

Lanky, blond, blue-eyed Mulligan, along with the other cast regulars, including Victor French; plus the guest actors who will be playing in this episode only, such as Paul Smith, who was recruited from a TV beer blurb; as well as the executive producer, producer, director, story editor and script supervisor—all are gathering round a long table on Stage 3 for the first reading of the "Rumble" script.

The bought-and-paid-for writing team which handcrafted the teleplay from an aerie at the top of Mulholland is not present now. Yet the most striking feature of the "reading" is the "writing." Lines continually go in and come out, the script supervisor busily keeping track of them. Actor Smith invents a speech which is incorporated into the script. Executive producer Stern immediately sparks to the idea. "Don't think of it as a commitment," he encourages. "Think of it as an improvisation."

After a lunch break Mr. Stern makes one of his "house calls" to the set. He finds the youthful (38) director, Bruce Bilson, blocking out one of those routine situation-comedy husband-wife scenes. The one where the husband arrives home after work and the wife says: "Hello, darling. How'd it go today?" They hit a dialog snag.

After all the embraces and cheery hellos, wife has to get the plot moving and she needs a more natural-sounding transitional phrase than the script provides. Suddenly everybody's a writer—thinking, thinking.

BILSON: How about "By the way"?

STERN: "By the way's" drive me crazy.

Bilson considers himself more camera-oriented than the average director and The Hero cast regulars have picked up on it too. "Bruce is a very bright camera," says Mulligan. "In fact, we call him 'I-Am-a-Camera.'" He was born to the business, his father, George Bilson, having made a lifework out of grinding out RKO's venerable two-reelers featuring Edgar Kennedy of the slow burn.

Tuesday morning's sunlight hits the familiar Western street at a sharp angle. Mulligan, in his Jed Clayton get-up, is leaning against the hitching post while wardrobe man Jerry Alper, on his knees, rubs dirt into the brand-new cowboy boots. Mulligan continued

quips, "I'm being 'used.'"

The street is familiar to film makers as the Western outdoor set situated just inside the DeMille Gate at the main Paramount Studio, where, this day, The Hero company has located. But the street is familiar to millions of Bonanza devotees as "Virginia City" and NBC is disquieted. The network wishes to preserve the pristine background of its No. 1 ratings bonanza.

Hiding a hill: $400

The Hero company has had a huge tree trunk dragged to the middle of the town square and there "dressed" with $400 worth of foliage in order to disguise a "hill" that, in the network's view, epitomizes the Cartwrights' home territory.

First team. Roll 'em. Speed. Action. Sam Garret and an Indian are engaged in hand-to-hand combat. The Indian tries to stick a hunting knife in Sam's chest. Sam gives the Indian a chop to the neck. The Indian butts Sam in the stomach. Sam charges with a flying tackle. The Indian is on his back with Sam on top of him, choking him when . . .

Hold it. Take five. Save the arcs. Executive producer Stern interrupts the proceedings for a conference with director Bilson. Stern protests that the fighting looks too realistic. Bilson replies that they're only following the directions in the script. Stern contends that the viewers know these are supposed to be television actors rehearsing. Consequently the fight should look a little stagy.

The last setup of the day is to supply the visual background for the production credits at the end of each episode. It is to show The Hero in his marshal's outfit exiting the saloon and mounting his horse, which runs away with him, out the studio gate onto Marathon Street. Now Carl the wrangler balks at allowing his horse to gallop on the slippery pavement. A layer of Celotex is laid down, topped with a hundred-dollar load of dirt. The horse is shod with borium horse-shoes. Mulligan's riding double, Bryan Teague, does the riding.

Wednesday morning finds The Hero company on a quiet residential street in the staid old Hancock Park district. A fluttery little lady by the name of Mrs. Howard is eying somewhat apprehensively the nine vans, trucks and buses parked at her curb, the cast and crew of 70, as well as all the equipment arrayed on her front lawn, and the three police officers directing traffic in front of her house.

It had been chosen by the art director as just the sort of house that Sam Garret, TV star, would live in; and Mrs. Howard had been so bold, when the pilot was filmed the previous winter, as to allow it all to happen. Now that the series has sold, all the lady can think about is the fate of her dichondra.

The crowd of extras—including Bill Dana's brother and Don Adams' cousin—who yesterday played cowboys and townspeople on the Bonanza street, are today unrecognizable in business suits and ties as they double for Sam Garret's neighbors and friends.

DIRECTOR BILSON: Guys who were at the front of the mob yesterday stay toward the back. New faces in front.

It's a war over violence

It is a scene of mob action. Sam's neighbors, who want to do away with violence on television, have split into two groups, the Anti-Violence Committee and the Original Anti-Violence Committee. The two groups advance belligerently down the street toward one another, armed with baseball bats, croquet mallets, tennis rackets and hockey sticks.

Stern has driven up to the location to check the action. He beams approvingly. He likes what he sees. Between takes he comments to Mrs. Howard: "The point being made here is this—in our great desire for peace, we're going to destroy it." Mrs. Howard nods, trying to get the picture. Then with a roar both gangs go for each other, trampling Sam, who is caught in the middle. Mrs. Howard surveys her home gloomily.

Thursday and Friday the company is back on Stage 3 at Paramount-Sunset Studio to shoot the interiors. For example, that scene in the Garret bedroom, the one discussed at the story conference in May and constructed by the two collaborators in the Mulholland outpost in June. The set (whose $3700 cost was to be amortized over the whole season, as determined at the budget meeting) is now being lit. The walls have been painted that orange shade selected by Mariette Hartley on Monday. Suddenly it's apparent that the rusty-orange is clashing with Mariette's reddish-auburn hair. The order is given: Repaint the bedroom green.

She sits out the delay in her portable dressing room on Stage 2. Mariette Hartley, up till now identified with heavy dramatic roles such as the frigid Dr. Claire Morton in 34 consecutive episodes of Peyton Place, learned to do a double take in The Hero pilot. She approaches her role with quite a few convictions of her own: "I'm fighting against being an emasculating wife. I don't want to make Ruth so domineering or secure that Sam comes out a boob."

Exiting the projection room Friday noon, having viewed Thursday's dailies, producer Jay Sandrich remarks: "Richard's body-takes are beautiful. He does a beautiful embarrassed take."

Mulligan, who regularly attends the dailies, concedes: "People tell me I'm a physical actor. Bodies never tell lies. We can say the right words to cover up our nervousness, but our bodies always reveal our real emotions and character."

"Being a stumblebum is no longer Sam Garret's predominant characteristic," says Sandrich. "Originally Sam was supposed to be one of those fellows born with 10 thumbs. The change came about because Richard displayed such a range of reactions we didn't have to restrict ourselves to that stereotype."

He's a policeman's son

David Susskind and Dan Melnick, Stern's partners in Talent Associates, signed Mulligan for The Hero after catching his performance as a writer in "Nobody Loves an Albatross" on Broadway. He is the son of a New York City policeman. He studied with Lee Strasberg of the Actors Studio. His older brother is movie director Robert Mulligan ("To Kill a Mockingbird," "Inside Daisy Clover"). He recently appeared in the movie version of Mary McCarthy's "The Group." "I'm the Bohemian painter who seduces the girl in the second chapter." Like Sam Garret, he is married—to actress Joan Hackett. They were wed last winter.

"Rumble Without a Cause" is now well on its way. Only the editing, scoring, and dubbing remain. By the night of its Oct. 6 air date, Stern hopes, 30 million enthusiastic fans will be forming The Hero habit.

One thing bothers Mulligan: "There is a certain amount of confusion. One day at the close of shooting I was in my Jed Clayton outfit and went to my dressing room to put on Sam Garret's clothes to go home in, instead of mine.

"To add to the muddle my dressing room has the name 'Jed Clayton' on it, so that it can be used on the set. I have visions of the three of us bumping into each other."

That goes for us double.

Uh, triple.
